

Investigating Sexual Crimes

1. False allegations. Police Officers estimate that about 40% - 50% of allegations of sexual assault and rape are false. The true figure is actually somewhere between 2% - 10%. That means that between 90% and 98% of the allegations officers come across are true. Original article: <https://journals.sagepub.com/doi/10.1177/1077801210387747>

Domestic Homicide

2. Domestic Homicide: Domestic abuse-related murders are very difficult to forecast. However, one useful predictor is the offender having threatened or even attempted suicide. Original article: <https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s41887-017-0014-y>

Interviewing

3. Interviewing suspects or human intelligence sources: Overly formal and authoritative introductions at the beginning of an interview, especially with a lack of rapport and a warning to the interviewee about lying, can generate negative perceptions in interviews. Original article: <https://psycnet.apa.org/record/2016-56442-001>